an innovative introduction to human geography exploring different ways of studying the relationships between people and place and putting people at the centre of human geography the book covers behavioural humanistic and cultural traditions showing how these can lead to a nuanced understanding of how we relate to our surroundings on a day to day basis while taking the importance of these different approaches seriously as ways of thinking about the role of place in peoples everyday lives the book also tries to encapsulate what has been so vibrant and exciting about human geography over the last couple of decades by using examples to which students can relate such as how they imagine and represent their home the way they avoid certain spaces how they move through retail spaces where they choose to go to university how they use the internet how they represent other nations and so on the authors show how geography shapes everyday life in a manner that is seemingly mundane yet profoundly important in this innovative and original collection people are seen as active agents in the development of new ways of understanding the past and creating histories for the present chapters explore forms of public history in which people's experience and understanding of their personal national and local pasts are part of their current lives sex and the sexual have for far too long been consigned to the dark corners by social scientists in general and tourism and leisure scholars in particular sex and the sexual during people's leisure and tourism experiences seeks to begin to rectify this situation by bringing the position and nature of sex and the sexual into the light of academic debate as such this book is designed to highlight cross disciplinary emerging work on sex and the sexual in leisure and tourism and provide the readers with insights into this social realm it encompasses a broad array of sex related issues and tourism and leisure environments from across a variety of countries the book should appeal to researchers and students across the humanities and social sciences both for the value of the research in its own right and the ability of it to be used as a lens through which to view the position of sex and the sexual as well as tourism and leisure in today's world overall it is argued that sex and the sexual should play a part in the academic discourse especially if we wish to describe what is actually happening out there as far as tourism and leisure are concerned human rights and the body is a response to the crisis in human rights to the very real concern that without a secure foundation for the concept of human rights their very existence is threatened while there has been consideration of the discourses of human rights and the way in which the body is written upon research in linguistics has not yet been fully brought to bear on either human rights or the body drawing on legal concepts and aspects of the law of human rights mooney aims to provide a universally defensible set of human rights and a foundation or rather a frame for them she argues that the proper frames for human rights are firstly the human body seen as an index reliant on the natural world secondly the globe and finally language these three frames generate rights to food water sleep and shelter environmental protection and a right against dehumanization this book is essential reading for researchers and graduate students in the fields of human rights and semiotics of law
